OCR REFRESHER

X1 Because of the success of the first OCR Refresher, Mr. James [] has requested two more, one to include certain FDD personnel.

PREPARATION OF SCRIPT FOR DDCI

X1 Mr. [] and the O&B Officer have been working together on a graduation address to be presented by General Cabell at the Strategic Intelligence School. The address will be given to the attachés and their wives.

ACTION RE JIBES AT CIA BY NSA OFFICIAL

1. As reported recently, jibes at CIA were made by an Army colonel attached to NSA during his presentation on the mission, functions, and organization of NSA given to the members of NSA's Staff Officer Course at Fort Meade. Specifically, the remark was made that the merger of IAC and USCIB into USIB posed a legal problem as to whether the members of the Board were true members or "merely" advisors to the DCI. So far so good, but the colonel added that "there is a sneaking suspicion that CIA would like to 'reduce' the other members to the status of 'mere advisors.'" The tone of his remarks here, and at other points during his talk, was indicative of hostility.

2. In reply, the O&B Officer pointed out the distinction between the Director's statutory functions, retained within the framework of the new USIB, and all other matters taken up by the Board, now determined by "consensus." He also pointed out that Mr. Dulles has invited General Samford to pass on NIE's although NSA does not directly contribute to NIE's and is specifically precluded by NSCID #6 from producing finished intelligence.

3. The colonel also thought that the fact that the three civilian agencies (CIA, State, FBI) on the old USCIB had two votes each was indicative of an attempt at civilian control over an essentially military function. The truth of the matter, of course, is that AFSA (later NSA) was performing a national function, not a purely military one. The decision that the voting should be evenly divided between military and civilian organizations was made at the policy level after a recommendation to that effect by the Brownell Committee.

X1 4. The matter has been thoroughly discussed with Mr. []
X1 [] Dep. Ch./Special Intelligence Center/OCI, and Mr. []
X1 [] CIA Liaison Officer at NSA. All agree that this colonel
X1 does not represent the NSA viewpoint but that he is personally
"off-base." Mr. [] will take up the issue with the colonel's superior, Mr. [], who is the chief advisor to General
Samford and who usually gives this lecture.

This should get results

5. It is interesting to note that the colonel served a tour with the Agency at one time. It all seems to boil down to one individual whose MPD assignment in the Agency turned him sour and who likes to divide people into two categories--military and civilian, the "good guys" and the "bad guys."
